MP SLAMS DELAY IN OPENING OF COVID-19 BOOSTER JAB CLINICS

Vulnerable patients in Ormskirk were told to travel out of town to get their vaccinations

Report by Henry James

WEST Lancashire Clinical Commissioning Group has been slammed by MP Rosie Cooper for "fail-ing their patients in Ormskirk" after over-75s in the town were told to travel elsewhere to get their Covid booster vaccinations.

She said the booster programme had been "abandoned in the town for weeks" and it was only after her intervention that health authorities started working to set up vaccine booster clinics in Orm-skirk which should be open from next week.

The NHS have been rolling out the Covid-19 Spring booster vaccine programme for over 75s across the country, and in most places it is provided by the local GPs.

In Ormskirk however, the Primary Care Network, made up of local GPs, decided to opt out of providing this and instead the booster jab is supposed to be being offered by the local Aspire Pharmacy.

The MP said Aspire Pharmacy were overwhelmed and have been telling any over-75s to go to Burscough, Skelmersdale or other national sites that are further away for their vaccinations.

Health bosses have said they are "actively monitoring uptake while we develop plans to deliver more clinics in the area."

The MP said: "This is ridiculous. The CCG have failed their vulnerable Ormskirk patients, sitting idly by whilst the pharmacy, which were supposed to vaccinate them, decided it was too much work!

"For weeks now, my constituents have been told that they have no options to get the booster in Ormskirk and must travel to Burscough or beyond if they want to be fully protected against Covid.

"This means some of my vulnerable constituents who may not be able to drive have been left with a choice - risk infection on public transport to get to Burscough, or go without the booster.

"I am appalled this has been allowed to happen and have asked NHS England why a major town has been allowed to go without a vaccination centre for weeks without anyone sorting it out."

She added: "I am now glad to hear that Aspire, the Ormskirk GPs and the Clinical Commissioning Group are working to set up vaccine booster clinics in Ormskirk from next week.

"I am told there will be weekday and weekend clinics from the health centre as well as pop ups.
"While this is a welcome improvement, it should have been resolved as soon as Aspire indicated that they were pausing their service. "I am very disappointed that it took patients' complaints to get this awful situation resolved.'

Dr Peter Gregory, GP at Parkgate Surgery in Orm-skirk and chair of NHS West Lancashire Clinical Commissioning Group, said: "After playing a significant part in the Covid-19 vaccination programme, GP practices in Ormskirk stepped back from the programme at the end of March to focus on seeing as many patients as possible in primary care and tackling the backlog caused by the pandemic.

"The CCG is working with NHS England, as well as the Lancashire and South Cumbria vaccination team, to ensure an equitable rollout of the Covid-19 vaccine

Navy veteran helping one of 'Little Ships' sail in tribute to the Dunkirk evacuation

Report by Henry James

A ROYAL Navy veteran from Skelmersdale is involved in a plan to sail one of the legendary 'Little Ships' from her home port of Somerleyton to Plymouth as a tribute to the brave men who helped the evacuation of Dunkirk in 1940 and the 40th anniversary of the Falklands conflict.

Tom Morrison, 66, was part of an effort to sail the ship, Estrallita, from the Norfolk Broads to Poole last year to commemorate the anniversary of VE/VJ Day and Operation Dynamo, which was the evacuation of Allied troops from Dunkirk in 1940.

Tom, who is chairman of Skelmersdale Royal Naval Association, was joined in the bid by Estrallita's owner Tony Bilson, and Michael Jack' Hawkins, who all served on HMS Bulwark in the 1970s

However, the plan had to be changed because of the pandemic, and they ended going to Ramsgate to collect money for veterans' charities.

In May 28, 1940 Estrallita was commandeered and sailed from Poole Harbour and then requisitioned on June 1, 1940 taking part in Operation Dynamo before being further manned by RN crew. The vessel was then used as a harbour vessel in Poole until the end of the war.

Tony, has used his own finance to restore the vessel to its former glory over the last

The ship has been added to the National Historic Ships Register which also includes the HMS Victory and HMS Warrior.

Tom said: "As Royal Navy veterans, we all understand the significance of the brave men who manned Estrallita and her role during that time.

"This is why we're going to take her along the coast and back to commemorate the brave men of Poole that undertook the epic voyage from there to Dover and on to Dunkirk in 1940.

"Estrallita really is the Little Ship that keeps on giving!

"We'd planned to do it before, but circumstances were against us but what makes this just as fitting is that we can commemorate the actions of all services, but particularly the Royal Navy, in the 40th anniversary year of the Falklands Conflict raising money for SSAFA to support our servicemen and their families."

For a time, the vessel was moored in London and Hughie Green, from the TV show Opportunity Knocks used it as living accommodation

Care flats plan for Toby Tavern site withdrawn weeks after huge blaze

PLANS to build 60 apartments for extra-care living accommodation at the location of the former Toby Tavern Bar and Grill on Ashurst Road have been withdrawn just weeks after a massive fire at the site.

At the beginning of March, arsonists are believed to be behind a massive blaze which devastated the historic former Skelmersdale Hall building which was last used as the Old Toby pub.

last year, all existing buildings on the site were proposed to be demolished apart from the Grade II listed building Skelmersdale Hall.

The building on Ashurst Road, Skelmersdale, which dates back to 1712, has now been left severely damaged in the fire on the evening of Friday, March 4.

The plans stated the existing Grade II listed building will be maintained and restored. It was due to contain a manager's office, care manager office, kitchen and bistro.

The building was to have been attached to the proposed new extra-care building via a new single glazed link as the entrance

This week, Ashurst borough councillor James Upjohn has said the following about the application: "The applicant has withdrawn their application to develop the site and also withdrawn their application for listed building consent.

"The conservation officer at WLBC has inspected the site and has said enough of the building remains that it should be rebuilt using the available stone and that the building is of special heritage significance."

Report by Henry James

A TOUCAN crossing and a shared use track for cyclists and pedestrians will be installed near the junction of County Road and Yew Tree Road in Ormskirk.

Lancashire County Council's cabinet agreed to the move after considering a report which outlined public feedback to plans for improved crossing facilities for pedestrians and cyclists.

A proposal to close part of Yew Tree Road to traffic was not pursued.

Phil Durnell, director of highways and transport for Lancashire County Council, said: "We are increasingly looking at what we can do to make it easier for people to walk and cycle for short journeys.

"As one of the main routes into Ormskirk, County Road is very busy, and the lack of facilities to cross has been identified as a barrier to people using the quieter side roads to walk and cycle.

'We also recently consulted on a proposal to permanently close part of Yew Tree Road to through-traffic south of the junction with Hillcrest Road as the continuation of a temporary measure which was introduced following the first Covid-19 lockdown.

"However, the recommendation to councillors was not to pursue this proposal due to the effect it may have on displacing traffic onto nearby routes and potentially increasing the risk to anyone walking and cycling on those neighbouring roads."

The Toucan crossing will be located on County Road just to the east of the junction with Yew Tree Road.

The plan includes short sections of shared use track for use by both pedestrians and cyclists to allow cyclists to access the crossing, along with some new parking restrictions to keep access and visibility clear.

Gateway Project's next phase to start with bus station work

WORK will begin on the next phase of the Ormskirk Eastern Gateway scheme on Tuesday, April 19 with Moor Street pay and display car park closing from 5pm on Saturday, April 16 to allow the site compound to be established and for work on the new bus station to begin.

Initial work will focus on the construction of temporary bus stops with shelters on St Helen's Road which will be in use until the new bus station opens in late August.

During this time, 'No stopping except buses' will be in force at the temporary bus stops to ensure services can continue to operate safely.

The existing bus station is due to be closed in early May to allow for its safe demolition and construction of the new one, with signs on site guiding passengers to the temporary shelters on St Helens Road.

The aim of demolishing the bus station building is to create a "valuable open space in the town centre through which the proposed new cycling routes with the town centre and the railway station can be connected."

The borough council said it will 'help attract more people to the town centre which in turn will help support local business. The works on Moor Street will begin in July and will include a new mini roundabout to replace existing traffic signals at the St Helens Road junction, new kerbs and paving, road re-surfacing and tree planting. This is due to be followed by further works on St Helens Road throughout November and December.

All of the work is due to be carried out by Eric Wright Civil Engineering.

Lancashire County Council has decided to schedule planned safety improvements and maintenance to Derby Street Railway Bridge for early 2023 to minimise the impact on traffic in the town centre while work is taking place on the Ormskirk Eastern Gateway scheme.

This scheme will involve strengthening the historic stone bridge, and widening the pavement to make it safer for pedestrians, which will involve reducing traffic over the bridge to a single lane.

Council's own house building company will not be wound down

opposed the move

Report by Henry James

WEST Lancashire Borough Council's home building company, Tawd Valley Developments (TVD) will not now be wound down.

A motion which stopped all TVD developments outside of the borough and all those within the borough that are not already in progress was cancelled at a meeting of the Full Council (April 6).

A new motion, carried by 26 votes to 25, reversed the previous decision passed at a Full Council meeting in February.

The council has said a "cross-party committee will be established to allow meaningful and productive discussions to take place in relation to the future direction of TVD.

A spokesman for the borough council said they 'wholly owned' TVD as the 'only shareholder' and said "no further details about future decisions or plans are available at this time.'

Council Leader Cllr Ian Moran said: "A lot has been reported lately about opposition parties shutting down TVD.

"We are pleased to report that the previous decision has now been overturned and the company will continue to operate.

"TVD is delivering much-needed local housing in a considered fashion and appropriate to the local area, unlike developers seeking to concrete over West Lancs' greenbelt and public open spaces in pursuit of shareholder profit, which seems to be what opposition parties would prefer.

"TVD is delivering a revenue return to the council in light of continued budget cuts by central government, meaning the West Lancs council taxpayers benefit not overseas shareholders.

"The company remains under threat from opposition Conservative and OWL councillors but Labour alongside the true Independent councillors will continue to fight to protect council taxpayer money and council

"Such huge infrastructure and financial decisions about the future of the council should not be made based on party politics, as councillors we have a duty to provide services for residents and it is incumbent on all political parties to put residents first and not reject a project simply because Labour started, and nor should they be risking leaving us with a £1 million blackhole in the council budget."

Conservative Group Leader, Cllr David Westley aid: "The Motion that Labour and the Independents managed to squeeze through at last week's Full Council achieved very little.

"It reversed a previous decision to establish a Shareholders Committee but perversely also establishment of a new Shareholders Committee with the same political make up i.e. 2 Cons, 1 Owl and 2 Labour. This means Labour will still be in a minority and the Conservatives Group can continue to hold them to account.

"What the motion did do was delay the much-needed member's scrutiny of Tawd Valley Development. The original Committee only met once but this was sufficient to obtain full financial information. "This confirmed our concerns about TVD's future given the lack of a viable pipeline of development proects within the borough.

Cllr Adrian Owens, leader of OWL added: "It is deplorable that the new Labour chairman of this committee has cancelled the scheduled meeting which was to probe the 'rather unusual' accounts of TVDL, and no new date has been set.

"At the last committee meeting we discovered that TVDL have their eyes on building on another piece of public open space.

Edge Hill wins award for helping primary school hit by blaze

University campus offered classrooms so pupils could continue learning after fire

In June last year, Asmall Primary School suffered a blaze which threatened to disrupt the education of children who had only recently returned to school from lockdown.

Within 24 hours, plans were being laid at Edge Hill to accommodate the pupils and less than a week later, the school was up and running in a new temporary home on campus.

The University's response has been recognised with the Reaching Higher Award in the Association of University Directors and Estates (AUDE) Awards.

of University Directors and Estates (AUDE) Awards. Director of Facilities Management at Edge Hill University, Adrian McGillion, said: "There's a well-developed sense of civic responsibility at the university. It's a close-knit community here, many of our own staff had children at the school, and people worked hard from the very next day, rallying round, with an attitude of 'anything we can do, we will do'.

"There were so many aspects to the work that was needed – identifying buildings that could be used, repurposing them, finding furniture that worked for children, the IT aspect, insurance, safeguarding. But there was a real willingness to make it happen.

"It was a fantastic joint effort between the school, our Estates and Facilities, IT and Faculty of Education colleagues who pulled out all the stops to provide them with all the essentials they needed so that the children could carry on their learning. The work made a real difference - to us as well as to them."

Speaking on behalf of the judges, AUDE Executive Director Jane White said: "To turn a campus into a school within a week is a massive effort.

"We all know the degree of disruption our children have faced during Covid, and on the day of the fire it must have seemed the very worst luck on top of an already awful period.

"The extent to which the university community set out to fix this really speaks of strong civic pride, but also of the ability to roll sleeves up and practically deliver whatever is necessary, something we've seen more than ever from our estates and facilities teams during the pandemic."

New Rail Minister invited by MP to visit Skelmersdale

Report by Henry James

AN invitation has been sent by West Lancashire MP Rosie Cooper to new Rail Minister Wendy Morton MP to visit Skelmersdale ahead of the Department for Transport's decision on the Skelmersdale Railway proposal.

The 'Strategic Outline Business Case' containing

The 'Strategic Outline Business Case' containing the detailed proposals for the reintroduction of a train station in Skelmersdale was submitted by Lancashire County Council to the Government in September 2021.

The Department for Transport are yet to respond to the proposal but have been in correspondence with the MP about the process they are following.

To support the proposal, Ms Cooper has written to the Rail Minister with an open invitation to visit Skelmersdale with her, to see first hand how much of a difference connecting the town to the rail network would make.

The Government have previously expressed support for this campaign. During the 2019 General Election, the Northern Powerhouse Minister said that the Prime Minister had committed to reopen the Skelmersdale railway line, and the Conservative campaign website even named Skelmersdale as one of the key sites for rail improvements.

Rosie Cooper said: "This proposal has been years in the making, and hundreds if not thousands of hours have gone into researching and developing this plan and campaigning for the Government to consider it.

MP Rosie Cooper by a Merseyrail train

"Anyone that lives in or has even visited Skelmersdale can tell you how revolutionary it would be to the town, both socially and economically. It is one of the largest towns in the country without its own train station, but also has very poor bus links and one of the lowest car ownership rates. It is unbelievable that it has gone this long without a station.

"The Government have been clear in the past that they are supportive of reopening the Skelmersdale railway. In fact, they were very vocal about it during the 2019 election! I will continue to hold them to this commitment while the proposal is being considered.

"The new Rail Minister has only been in her role for a few months, so may not be aware of the proposal yet. I hope she accepts my invitation to walk around Skelmersdale with me to see first-hand what a huge boost this would be."

Champion LETTERS to the Editor

Help break down barriers that stop children shining before it's too late

In 2019, Action for Children launched a landmark report which explored childhood across three generations.

Now, two years on from the first national lockdown, we have revisited this research to understand the worries children face growing up in the shadow of the pandemic amid a growing cost of living crisis.

As children grapple with how they fit into our increasingly complex world.

world – navigating big issues including financial worries, climate change and the pandemic – our research shows that most North West parents (62%) and grandparents (66%) fear childhood is getting worse and over a third (36%) of children agree

Many children, particularly those from low-income families, worry about their family's finances.

As the UK is set to face the biggest income squeeze in nearly 50 years, these worries look set to get worse.

Meanwhile, mental health is now a much bigger worry for the region's children with less than a quarter (24%) of children seeing their own mental health as an issue in 2019, compared to 41% in 2022. We believe there's a star in every

When a child is safe and happy, their star shines brightly.

However, poverty, abuse and neglect, and poor mental health are robbing too many children of the bright futures they deserve.

We are asking your readers to help us break down the barriers that stop children shining – before it's too late.

Visit actionforchildren.org.uk/star to find out how you can help.

Imran Hussain. Action for Children

I've been impressed by the standard of service which is provided by NHS in our area

I have recently had to use the services provided by our CCG (Clinical Commissioning Groups who oversee NHS care in our area).

I was very impressed.

There has been such an improvement on years ago, despite horrendous problems of long term underfunding and the pandemic.
Do not let this government

'throw the baby out with the bath

They may accuse the NHS of being inefficient, even though they have been in charge of it for 12 years. Please compare our costs with what Americans have to pay for health insurance!

It seems immoral that companies can make huge profits out of people's ill health.

And let our regional health service be a model of good practice for others to follow please!

Julie Myers,

Government caved in to motorists' lobby over pavement parking problem

Around four years ago an MP proposed a private member's bill to ban cars parking on pavements, but the government asked him to withdraw the bill as they intended to introduce a government bill on the issue.

The government did nothing for three years, not wanting to upset motorists, and then, due to pressure, held a consultation on the matter.

It appears that the government is intent on allowing local authorities to continue to allow pavement parking on roads where parking on the road would obstruct emergency vehicles. The result would be parking on pavements would continue to be allowed on all but major roads.

There is no encouragement for motorists to buy smaller cars rather than monsters such as Range Rovers. In giving in to the car lobby again.

the government is putting in danger mothers with prams and mobility

JM Berry,

Fracking is not a silver bullet which will bring down our energy prices

Mark Rimmer writes a very compelling argument for fracking.

He's right we need a cheaper option and a reliable supply of energy.
Whilst I take on board the need for much better long term greener fuels I also want to be able to provide heat, food and decent living standards for

There's a big problem that I think many people are forgetting about the whole fracking argument

Profiteers work for those who pay most and there is no guarantee that the energy resources dug in Britain will go to Britain!

Do we have politicians and an elite putting sensible options that work for Britain first or just money opportunities?

Then I think where has the most gas to frack? Well that would have Lancashire at the top of the list and what will the effect be?

I would like to trust statistics and facts but how can I do this when things such as our carbon footprint doesn't include aviation, online shop ping, and sweatshops owned by multinational firms?

The energy crisis has been on the cards long before Putin's invasion of Ukraine.

Have politicians purposely ignored sensible long term decisions for cheaper and safer energy because some people have been allowed to get very rich, bank their money offshore and not pay tax on money that we can know they have but can't evidence completely for tax payments?

I know I have my opinion and everyone else has a right to theirs but until we can all trust that our politicians are working for the country and being if they will happen at all I don't think fracking can be a silver bullet for lower energy costs.

Meanwhile people are being told to work harder for less money and many people no longer have the money to pay taxes, mortgages, energy, food and everything else.

We have the tools to get different forms of energy, the wish to recycle and stop being so

I think we also need to tackle changing our politicians to gain a positive result for Britain.

Janet Ingman,

Firms profiteering from petrol

Why is it the day before the highly publicised 5p a litre fuel reduction in the budget, that the Texaco filling station at Booths in Burscough put its prices up 5p from 1.78 to

Then when it was announced they reduced it back to 1.78.

And then no more than 18 hours after the reduction, Texaco have put it back up to 1.83, which in my eyes is 10p a litre over

Why is this allowed and why is it not getting highlighted when it is profiteering pure and simple?

Paul Ash, By email

touching hearts, changing lives

ADVERTORIAL

Spring into a slimmer you this summer

For many of us, this summer will be the first time in three long years that we've had a proper sunshine holiday. And a lot of us are dreading the moment when we dig out our holiday clothes and find they don't fit quite as well as they used to! If you'd like to lose weight and hit the beach feeling fitter and healthier, local weight-loss experts from Slimming World, shares their top tips on how making small changes now can get you on track for a slimmer that if you set vourself a goal you're more likely to achieve it - and the more ambitious the better. A study of 24,000 slimmers by Slimming World found that slimmers who set an ambitious dream target weight lost almost twice as much weight as those who aimed for a more modest amount. "Setting an ambitious target can help you visualise what you're capable says Slimming World's Head of Research and Scientific Affairs, Dr Jacquie Lavin. She also recommends setting 'mini targets' which Slimming World members are encouraged to do each week, whether it's to lose a couple of pounds, go for a lunchtime walk or cook with new ingredients. "Your big goal is your destination, mini targets are milestones along the way. Every time you achieve one it will give you a sense of achievement and motivate you on to the next step.

2. SPRING INTO ACTION Kelly Taylor (Crosby and Waterloo)

Make the most of longer days and warmer weather and head out for some fresh-air fitness. A study from the University of Exeter shows that compared with indoor workouts, exercising in a natural environment is associated with greater feelings of happiness and well-being, as well as increased energy levels. Outdoor exercisers also report greater enjoyment and satisfaction from their workouts and feel more inclined to keep it up plus you'll be boosting your immune system and topping up your vitamin D levels. Whether you're a complete exercise beginner or already a keep fit fan, there are a whole range of activities you can enjoy outdoors this spring from walking the dog to family bike rides and Park runs.

3. GET CREATIVE IN THE KITCHEN Jane Edwards (Netherton)

Discover your inner Jamie and cook meals from scratch with healthy seasonal ingredients like asparagus, spring greens and new potatoes, or dig out the barbecue and get grilling lean meat, fish and veg. And remember, losing weight doesn't have to mean going hungry. A study by the University of Leeds1, found that eating a diet based around low energy dense foods - foods that contain fewer calories per gram such as fresh fruit and veg, lean meat and poultry, pasta, rice and grains - is more effective for weight loss than traditional calorie counting. In fact, a group of women who followed Slimming World's low energy dense eating plan for 14 weeks lost over 12lbs compared to just over 7lbs in a group using a calorie-counting diet plan. You can find deliciously filling recipe ideas based on foods low in energy density at slimmingworld.co.uk.

4. SPRITZ UP YOUR SPRING! Sue Alt (Ormskirk and Skelmersdale)

There's nothing nicer than sitting outdoors on a sunny spring afternoon enjoying a drink with friends, yet alcohol can be a real obstacle if you're trying to lose weight. As well as the calories in alcohol, which are often higher than we realise (one large glass of wine has as many calories as a jam doughnut!), Slimming World's research into the impact of alcohol on weight revealed that having just slightly too much to drink and reaching our 'tipping point' can lead us into drinking and eating far more than we intended and as a result can impact hugely on our weight. The good news is that by making small changes to your drinking habits, you can still enjoy alcohol in moderation and manage your 'tipping point' and your weight loss. Carolyn Pallister, Nutrition and Health Policy Manager at Slimming World, says, "Interspersing alcoholic drinks with soft drinks, adding soda water to wine to make a spritzer, switching to slimline mixers, or choosing a low-calorie lager, can all make a big difference.

6. SPRING CLEAN YOUR HABITS

We're all creatures of habit and having a routine can be a lifesaver when you're busy — you're more likely to exercise regularly if you do it at the same time every week and having a set day for batch cooking can really help you plan for the week ahead. However, research from the University of Hertfordshire has found that when routines get overly rigid, they can act like webs, making it hard to change a habit even if we know it's not helpful. Having a spring clean of your habits can help you go after your weight loss goals with renewed focus. Carolyn says: "At Slimming World we've got a deep understanding of the psychology behind successful weight loss, and our groups are all about getting support to build healthy new habits around food and activity. It's so much easier to achieve when you have the support of a group of like-minded people who care about your success."

Proposals unveiled to build 20 homes on greenfield land

Report by Henry James

PLANS have been submitted to build 20 homes in Up Holland at vacant greenfield land.

Premier Builders Ltd from Stockport are the applicant for the development, which would be situated on land off Ormskirk Road.

In a planning statement they have said: "The application is driven by the need for both market and affordable housing within Up Holland to meet future housing needs within the borough of West Lancashire, to support economic growth and diversify the housing stock."

The site is not located within a conservation area and does not contain any listed buildings.

There are also no conservation areas or heritage assets within any sufficient distance as "to experience any impact as a result of the proposed development.

Local residents have been consulted on the draft proposals after more than 300 leaflets outlining the proposals were delivered to properties within the surrounding area.

A copy of the leaflet was also emailed to the three local councillors for the Up Holland ward. The leaflet contained a brief description of the proposed development, information about the application site, a site plan and CGIs which identified the access points, areas of residential development and the proposed design and lay-

A CGI image of how the development will look.

There was a questionnaire containing seven questions with the leaflet and this allowed residents to put forward suggestions on areas that affected them and how the proposals could be improved.

Seven responses were received and concerns were raised over access, trees, flooding and parking.
The planning statement for the application

The planning statement for the application makes the case for the development: "The development of housing on the site will be providing a public benefit in the provision of much needed market and affordable housing. "The loss of poor-quality open space is justified when considering the economic and social benefits the Proposed Development will bring and when considering the alternate provision of accessible open space elsewhere within the of accessible open space elsewhere within the immediate and wider locality."

Play-offs quandary for Skem as they are yet to find out who they will play

Skelmersdale United have qualified for the North West Counties League promo-tion play offs due to be held on Saturday, April 30 and they know that it will be an away game, writes Kevin Panther and Neil Leatherbarrow.

However they are left in a complete quandary as to who their opponents will be and probably won't know the answer until at least Saturday, April 23.

The problem is caused by the North West Counties League season finishing on Saturday, April 2, when the leagues that their potential opponents are in only finish on Saturday, April 23.
The other problem is that some teams

The other problem is that some teams will avoid the play offs and some won't, that is decided on a points per game (PPG)

The situation leaves Skelmersdale United in something of a quandary, they can only speculate as to which team they will play and it could be in the South of England.

Our Skelmersdale United reporter Kevin Panther has investigated the position and he has written an article on the promotion situation between Step 5 (where Skelmersdale currently are) and Step 4 (the Northern Premier League).

And The Football Association who are administering the play offs have said that they will try to fix up clubs with their nearest oppopers.

With most Leagues finishing on Saturday, April 23, United will not know for definite who they will face until the Sunday, giving just five days to organize what could be a very long trip indeed.

As it stands Skem will not be automatically promoted as they are currently 16th of the moted, as they are currently 16th of the equivalent step 5 league runners-up. It is not out of the question but they would need the seven teams above to lose all their remaining games, which is highly unlikely, so who will they face?

who will they face?
Now you need your calculator, slide rule, thesaurus and a good sat nav!
As it stands Newcastle Town from the NPL (West) which would be our preferred opponents are just outside the play-off places on PPG, but they could, if results don't go their way, find themselves in a play-off match, that would require a mere 54 miles journey.
Which leaves Sheffield (or equivalent in NPL (East) as the nearest, but both Consett (Northern League) and Eccleshill (North East Counties)

League) and Eccleshill (North East Counties) would be closer to Sheffield, so would probably get preference.

Histon (Cambridgeshire) NPL Midlands are a possibility, being Northern Premier League territory but as above, both Consett and Eccleshill are nearer, should one of these make the automatic promotion spot then Skem could find themselves travelling to the outskirts of Cambridge, a nice round trip of 380 miles. Should Consett and Eccleshill have to go through the play-offs then the next nearest for United would be either Kempston Rovers (Bed-fordshire) or Hertford Town (Hertfordshire) of the Southern League Central Division.

No don't laugh, as it stands this would be Skelmersdale's destination.

Kempston are in the relegation spot but have a far easier run in than Hertford Town. Distance to Kempston 171 miles to Hertford 196 miles.

Some journey to organize with just basically five days notice

Another problem for Skelmersdale might be the distance involved as it is understood that FA rules will probably prevent them putting a claim in for an overnight stay for the team, which might be preferable in an extreme distance

Skelmersdale United have started some of the planning required for their play-off match, they are taking bookings for a supporters coach to the game, however although it is something of a mystery tour they are taking bookings, they will require the fare at the time of booking and advise that will be returned if the coach doesn't run. There is a deadline on the bookings, you are advised to contact 07949 582262.

Champion MOTORS

TESLA'S boffins have clearly been busy.

Having not got distracted by their founder snapping up some of Twitter and then declining a seat on its board despite being its new biggest shareholder, the electric car experts have managed to find time to release another model. It's a small crossover, capable of hoiking itself 270 miles on a single charge and equipped with an in-car avatar that acts as an intelligent companion that operates the gadgets so that you can get on with driving.

Except this new arrival isn't a Tesla at all, despite the fact it could easily sit alongside a Model Y and most people would assume it's from the same range. It's.... a Smart.

This titchy five-door Juke-basher is from the company best known for two-seater city cars that you can park end-on to the pavement (although, in Britain, I've never actually seen one being used this way), but it's smart in the handsome sense, with a lower case 's'. Smart's original schtick was that you could order your City Coupé with bonkers panels covered in bright colours and eye-grabbing Noughties graphics, and when they became unfashionable two days later you could simply pop to your dealer and have another set clipped on. Essentially, it was a Nokia 3310 on wheels.

This one's the other way around - surprisingly sober looks and a stupid name. This new Smart is called the #1. Not 1 or One, but the Twitterfriendly #1. However, that does of course mean that it's the first of many models, and that logically, all the others that follow will be better. Starting, unfortunately, with Smart doing a number two.

A NEW entry-level version of Citroen's C3 has just gone on sale. The new You trim level picks up where the now-discontinued C1 left off, with prices starting at £12,995 more than £3,500 cheaper than the previous cheapest C3. For that you get LED headlights, body-coloured bumpers and door handles, a five-inch central touchscreen with Bluetooth connectivity and DAB digital radio.

But the rest of it gets my vote. It might not be as mad as some of Smart's earlier efforts, but the fact I initially thought it looked Tesla-esque is not necessarily a bad thing. Beneath the skin it's equipped with an electric motor that sends the zero emissions equivalent of 272 horses to its rear wheels, enough to propel it to 112mph should you ask it to. Word on the street is that there's going to be a hot version too, with Mercedes' tuning experts, Brabus, doing a 400bhp model in the not-so-distant future. I also admire Smart's insistence of being electriconly across all its models. There's no mucking about with plug-in hybrids, and as a result the engineering isn't compromised by having to create a car with two power sources in mind.

There's no word on official UK prices yet, but if they manage to offer it up for less than £35k than they'll give the Vauxhall e-Mokka - which is less powerful, not as good-looking and won't go as far on a charge - a very hard time.

I'd have one. As, I suspect, will someone at Tesla's research and design department.

David Simister is the editor of Classic Car Weekly

Citroen C3 is aimed at drivers who previously would have considered the smaller C1 model

VAUXHALL has made its last Astra in the North West. The carmaker has made more than four million cars at its Ellesmere Port plant in Cheshire, starting with the Viva in the 1960s, but the factory is now being reconfigured to make electric cars and vans instead, starting with the Combo-e – and its badge-engineered siblings, the Peugeot e-Partner and Citroen e-Berlingo. The final UK-built Astra was a Astra Sport Tourer SRi Nav 1.2 Turbo Manual in Hot Red.
